

THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE
THE WEEKLY HERALD
MISSES
ALWAYS BE PAID IN ADVANCE
AND IS AS FOLLOWS:

One Copy One Year... $1.50
One Copy Six Months... .75.
One Copy Three Months... .50.
Subscription from these rates under any circumstances sent to any post-office in the United States for the above price, and charged when desired.

NEVER FAILS—PLEASANT TO TAKE.
C. C. C. CERTAIN CHILL CURE

The only Certain and Effectual Cure for all Diseases of the Liver, Gall-bladder, and Kidney, Fever, Dumb Ague, Consumption, Rheumatism, &c., originating from a specific Liver or Malaria.

A Tonic for Feeding, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism, &c., &c.

PRICE, $1.00 Per Bottle.

By Dr. Frank G. Pease.

J. C. MERRILL, PHARMACIST,

BOSTON, MASS., U. S. A.

SOLD AND WARRANTED

BY

Z. WAYNE GRIFFIN & BRO.

521

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

C. W. HARRIS. W. T. HAYWARD.

Massie & Hayward,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Hartford, Kentucky.

WILL practice his profession in all the Courts of Justice, and adjoining counties, where there is a Court of Appeals, Office of State, and the Court of Appeals.

Also Notary Public for Ohio county.

JAMES A. SMITH,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,

HARTFORD, KY.

WILL practice his profession in Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office next to side of public square.

E. G. GIFFEY. B. D. STODDARD.

Guffy & Ringo,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Hartford, Kentucky.

WILL PRACTICE in all the courts of Ohio, County of Appeals, Office of State, and the Court of Appeals.

Also Notary Public for Ohio county.

F. L. FELIX,

ATTORNEY AT LAW

Hartford, Ky.

WILL PRACTICE in the courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Prompt attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. T. HOWARD,

Attorney at Law

GOV. IN HILLSIDE, FREDERICKSBG., OHIO.

WILL practice his profession in all the Courts of Justice and adjoining counties, where there is a Court of Appeals, Office of State, and the Court of Appeals.

Also Notary Public for Ohio county.

J. E. EDWIN ROWE,

COUNSELOR AND ATTORNEY AT LAW,

HARTFORD, KY.

WILL practice his profession in Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

12-5-17

J. D. WILSON,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

With Roads & Parks, Hartford.

WILL PRACTICE in the Courts of Ohio and adjoining counties. Special attention given to all suits of public square.

Office in public square.

Hartford Weekly Herald

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 5.

Beaver Dam Rail Road Time Table

No. 2-Mail and Express	12:25 P.M.
No. 3-Louisville, Pa., Mail	1:15 P.M.
No. 12-Local Freight	1:30 P.M.
WEST.	10:10 A.M.
No. 7-Limited Express	10:10 A.M.
No. 21-Louisville, Pa., Mail	11:15 A.M.
No. 11-Local Freight	11:15 A.M.

Cranberries at Foster & Carson's.
New millinery at J. E. Fogle & Co.

Try Hominy Flakes at Foster & Carson's.

Coal oil from 15¢ to 25¢ per gallon at Ford's.

Celery and fresh oysters at Foster & Carson's.

Everything good to eat at Westerfield & Son's.

Coal tar, pine tar and axle grease at Ford's.

Remember your account must be settled at Ford's.

Fogle, C. are headquarters for boots and shoes.

Rev. J. M. Lawson preached at the C. P. Church last night.

J. S. Vaughn wants to trade a new sewing machine for a horse.

J. E. Fogle & Co. can save you money on a hat or dress pattern.

Carpets, oil cloths, rugs and window curtains at Anderson's Bazaar.

Buy your hair from J. E. Fogle & Co. Their line is the largest and most striking.

Groceries—lots of 'em! Low prices—you think it? Where? at Westerfield & Son's.

Three good farms in Ohio county and one in Daviess for sale. Also farms for rent or lease.

GUFFY & BIXON.

Sullenger & Barnett have moved into their new grocery store on corner of Union and Market streets.

Take your laundry to W. F. Schapire if you want good work. Your garments will be washed and pressed.

R. E. Howe, a former editor of this town, has $200 stolen from him while in Paducah last Saturday night.

If you have ears or hay that you would like to exchange for a sewing machine call on Gross Williams. 443 Main.

Largest and neatest assortment of cloaks, plaid jackets and beaver in Hartford are at J. E. Fogle & Co.

Remember, Ford's is the place to take your car to get repaired. He will tell you where to go and short notice.

Don't fail to buy goods at the corner grocery, Sullenger & Barnett, proprietors. Goods go steady at 10 per cent.

Some of Hartford's musical talent will soon organize itself in an orchestra, composed of string, reed and valve instruments.

Foster & Carson's will receive a big lot of fresh oysters, celery and fresh fish to-morrow. Call and be supplied at most reasonable figures.

Westerfield & Son keep a full stock of the freshest groceries and pride themselves on their fair dealing and low prices. Call on them.

Foster & Carson's—completely aside at all reasonable figures, call on Sullenger & Barnett, on corner of Union and Market streets.

Of course you buy groceries and of course you want them cheap and of course you want a good stock to select from. Go to Westerfield & Son.

For the handsomest and most stylish jewelry in town, look up on "Sars & Ma's." New ones coming in almost every day at Anderson's Bazaar.

For the freshest and freshest drugs in the market, go to Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro. Prescriptions carefully compounded at all hours, day or night.

Don't forget that C. P. Schapire is on Corner Market and Union, next to William's. Wood should be had by you and you can get them.

For all kinds of books, stationery, call on Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro. Prices to suit the time. Call and be convinced. No trouble to show goods.

Groceries and family supplies of all kinds at C. P. Westerfield & Son. It will pay you to go direct to their store when you need anything in their line.

W. B. Bender, of town, added to our losses last Thursday a radish that weighed 3 pounds. What beat hot? The radish was perfectly solid and brittle.

Sullenger & Barnett are prepared to attend to the wants of their customers much better in their new quarters—corner of Main and Union Streets. Good luck to them.

Bros. Foster, Steamer and Bellinger are conducting a series of meetings at the Presbyterian Church at McHenry this week. They are all able ministers, and those who attend will be rewarded by good, instructive sermons.

Dr. A. B. Baird was called to Frankfort yesterday morning by Dr. W. H. Munroe, surgeon to the regular forces, to see the severe illness of Miss Lizzie, young daughter of General Sam E. Hill. She had been for some time ill, and it was feared her illness was of dangerous type.

A cheap and easy way to solve the shoe problem, is to try one pair of Anderson's "wear-for-ever" shoes. After such a surprising you can just sit and wait to see how the bill of your shoe bill. Sold in Ohio county by "Sars & Ma's" only at Anderson's Bazaar.

Mr. W. G. Duncan, of McHenry, was elected Grand Master of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows for Kentucky at the meeting of that body in Louisville last week. Mr. Duncan is one of the best posted and most popular members of that order in the State. He richly deserved the honor given him.

"Sars & Ma's" are better prepared than ever to have a sightly and abundant stock of goods from our military stores. The large and generous patronage extended to us in this department entitles us to give the bargains we offer.

The new bank at Beaver Dam has been organized with the following directors: L. P. Barnard, John H. Barnes, John Nave, W. N. Martin, R. P. Heck.

The directors elected L. P. Barnard President and John H. Barnes Cashier. The company will begin operations in December.

The Row Brought up on the Railroad

After the Dance was Over, When Campbell Shot Sharp, Killing Him Instantly.

KILLED AT MCHENRY.

Jack Tharp Tried to Take Charge of a Saturday Night Dance at Hamilton

BUT IS PREVENTED BY ARCH CAMPBELL.

The Row Brought up on the Railroad After the Dance was Over, When Campbell Shot Sharp, Killing Him Instantly.

HELD IN SOO HALL.

Jack Tharp was shot and instantly killed at McHenry last Saturday night by Arch Campbell. It seems that the trouble that finally culminated in Tharp's death was started at a dance held in McHenry. Miss Campbell was master of ceremonies at the dance, and soon after the dance had begun, the deceased in company with the other dancers, went to the barbershop, where he was a young man at that time. He is a good account writer, a hardy, sober, industrious habit. In fact, he is a model young man, and has many friends with him whom he respects.

On the morning of October 29th, a few of the friends of Mr. Howell, Brook and Miss Bette Taylor gathered in the tastefully decorated parlor of H. H. D. McHenry to hear the exercises of the Young Folks' Fraction. At nine o'clock the first number of the program, played by Mrs. Howell, of Louisville, and Miss Isabelle McHenry, announced the approach of the company, and the audience responded with a hearty cheer.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

He then went to his room, and was soon writing, leaving there for his home in Hamilton. On his way, he met with two Pollock boys, who were also members of the Young Folks' Fraction. They walked along together until they met the deceased and his companion on the curve of the railroad just above McHenry. When they all met, Campbell said to him, "What do you think I am?" and when the deceased replied that he had to do to keep the dance from being broken up. This necessitated a hasty retreat, and the boys followed him.

